

Stoush erupts over plans to protect Noosa's shores

Aerial view over Alexandra Bay in the Noosa National Park, looking south to Sunshine Beach and beyond. Picture: Lachie Millard

SCOTT SAWYER

15th Mar 2021 7:00 AM | Updated: 9:44 AM

Subscriber only

A battle is brewing over Noosa Shire Council's plans to safeguard its valuable coastline.

A new residents group has formed in a bid to fight back against what it says is "buck passing to residents" by council.

The draft Coastal Hazard Adaptation Plan, an initiative which was started by the previous Noosa Council, has sparked the birth of the Eastern Beaches Protection Association.

The newly-minted group lodged a damning submission to council, outlining their concerns the plan as drafted would do nothing to protect the local environment but cause significant economic cost to several communities.

Link to full story

<https://www.sunshinecoastdaily.com.au/news/stoush-erupts-over-plans-to-protect-noosas-shores/4216189/>